

D-BOX concludes a licensing agreement With another movie studio "Blue Underground"

Longueuil, Qc, June 3, 2008 - D-BOX Technologies Inc. (D-BOX) (TSX-V: DBO.A) announced today that it has signed a licensing agreement with another movie studio, Blue Underground, Inc. (Blue Underground). The license agreement specifically grants Blue Underground the right to embed D-BOX Motion Code™ on selected Blu-ray™ titles. By the same token, Blue Underground confirms that a Blu-ray™ version of the 1980 movie "The final countdown" will be the first D-BOX embedded title it intends to release.

Commenting on the announcement, Mr. Claude Mc Master, president and chief executive officer of D-BOX technologies stated: "We are very pleased of this agreement with Blue Underground, as it clearly demonstrates the increasing acceptance and recognition of our technology. By convincing another studio such as Blue Underground of the value of partnering with D-BOX, we are on track to deliver our strategic plan "Becoming a leader in establishing a new Worldwide standard in the Entertainment Industry", which includes an increased recognition of our brand and the accelerated penetration of our Motion technology system in our two main target markets: Home Entertainment which includes home theatre and video gaming, and movie theatres"

"We are quite impressed by the potential of what we have seen," stated William Lustig, president of Blue Underground "We really think the unique features provided by the D-BOX's technology will provide us with an interesting marketing angle in the re-release of popular movies in the high definition Blu-ray™ format»
