D-BOX to introduce a commercial version of its unique Motion Systems for Commercial Theatres at ShowEast 2008

Longueuil (Québec) – October 9, 2008 – D-BOX Technologies Inc. (TSX-V: DBO.A), a leading provider of Motion technology for the entertainment industry, announces today that it will unveil at ShowEast 2008, a commercial version of its unique Motion systems for commercial theatre application. ShowEast is a major convention and trade show for the cinema and distribution community which will be held in Orlando (Florida) between October 13 and 16, 2008.

Featuring the Company's patented D-BOX Motion Code™ technology, the introduction of a commercial version of its Motion systems or D-BOX MFX system, specifically designed for commercial theatres is a significant step in the development of this market.

"The introduction of this new Motion system sets the stage for D-BOX to enter into a new promising market segment. The movie industry is constantly looking for new ways to offer consumers value-added and unique experiences, while seeking to increase their potential revenues" stated Claude Mc Master, President and CEO of D-BOX Technologies. "The next step for us is now to continue negotiations with studios and exhibitors in order to bring a first feature film to the big screen, representing a worldwide premiere featuring audio, video and motion experience (AVM) for the benefit of consumers. This is a goal that we expect to accomplish by the end of 2009".
